REVOLUTION BREAKS OUT IN GREECE; KING SURRENDERS THRONE

Saloniki Despatches Say King Constantine Has Abdicated the Crown—Greek Troops Are Disarmed.

ATHENS CUT OFF FROM THE WORLD

Twenty-Six-Year-Old Crown Prince George, Idol of the People and Pro-Ally in Sympathy, Assumes Crown.

By United Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A revolution which may signalize the entrance of Greece into the European war has broken out in Northern Greece and, according to Saloniki reports, King Constantine has abdicated the throne.

Official dispatches from Saloniki this afternoon announced that the revolutionists are in control of one district in Macedonia and the government force in the Macedonian town of Voden have joined the revolutionists. The Greek troops in Saloniki were disarmed and interned by the Anglo-French forces after a company of revolutionists had laid siege to the garrison and fighting had resulted.

Athens apparently is cut off from communication with the outside world. No confirmation of the Saloniki report of King Constantine's abdication has come from the Greek capital, but it is known that a revolutionary party favoring the Allies was secretly active.

The twenty-six year old Crown Prince, George, according to Saloniki dispatches, assumed the regency following his father's abdication. An idol of the Greek people and Pro-Ally in sympathy, he is understood to have had the backing of former premier Venizelos, leader of the pro-war party.

The Greek Crown Prince is very popular and understood to be Pro-Ally, despite the fact he received his military education at a German academy and holds a honorary commission in the Prussian guard. He participated in the last two Balkan wars as an officer in the Greek army.

The general mobilization of the Greek army has been ordered. It is believed here that Greece, influenced by the Bulgarian declaration of war on Rumania today, will immediately range her armies alongside those of the Allies in an effort to crush the Bulgars.

COLUMBIA SCHOOLS SAVE $4,000 A YEAR

So Says McPherson at Convention of County Teachers Today

BUDGET SYSTEM AIDS

R. H. Emberson and Dr. Abner Jones Also Included in the Program.

The second day of the Boone County Teachers' Association opened in the High School Auditorium this morning with an address by Elmer Mace of Rocheport upon "Conditions and Needs of Country Life." He declared that the social life of the rural communities would have to be raised, if it were to be expected that the farmers' children are to remain in the country.

J. E. McPherson, superintendent of the Columbia schools, made an extra talk upon the general subjects of the relation between school boards and teachers. He quoted instances where schools are mismanaged and showed how they could be put upon a business basis.

Mr. McPherson declared that the Columbia schools were saving $4,000 a year by buying supplies in a business-like manner. He showed how the budget system was helping to put the Columbia schools upon a scientific basis. If school boards will not take the time to run the schools properly, the boards should pay the teachers enough salary for them to attend to these matters.

"The trouble with the rural school is that it does not pay but 30 and 40 cents a hundred assessed valuation, while the Columbia school district pays $1.30. I am safe in saying that I could buy the school supplies for Boone County, and save one-third of the present cost."

When Abner Jones asked Mr. McPherson if it would be advisable to have a county supplies purchaser, Mr. McPherson replied that his salary could be more than saved, if there were to be no politics.

R. H. Emberson, a state organizer for the boys' and girls' clubs, made a talk urging the teachers to co-operate with these clubs. About 80 persons agreed to organize the clubs in their districts.

Dr. Abner Jones outlined the plan of the proposed rural school survey for Boone County. This survey will not be made until the school year is nearly finished, in order that the maximum results may be obtained.

C. B. SMITH LEADS CONFERENCE

Government Expert at M. U. Extension Service Meeting.

C. B. Smith of the United States Department of Agriculture state's relation service acted as leader in a conference of the agricultural extension and experiment station men in Room 200, Agricultural Building at 9 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Smith's work is to inspect the accounts of the agricultural extension divisions in the different Universities and to examine the work done by the agricultural experiment stations.

Mr. Smith said the agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture are partners. Each state gets $10,000 to maintain an agricultural college and an experiment station, and, in addition, a sum divided among the states in accordance with their population.

County work in the past, Mr. Smith said, has been done entirely by men county agents. Three hundred fifty southern counties now have women county agents. There are only a few in the North, but the number is increasing.

Mr. Smith thinks boys' and girls' clubs will work most successfully in close co-operation with the school system, but something else is necessary to reach the boys who are out of school. "Six million farm boys under 21 do not attend school," Mr. Smith said, "and the clubs should include these boys."

Notification of Canceling of Walk-Out Order Will Be Given Wilson With Notice of Renomination.

SENATE TO HOLD A NIGHT SESSION

Adamson Eight-Hour Bill Will Be Rushed Through Tonight, Thus Averting Immediate R. R. Trouble.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—President Wilson will receive notification that Monday's threatened railway strike has been called off simultaneously with the formal notification tomorrow of his renomination for the presidency.

The Senate plans to rush the 8-hour bill through before it adjourns tonight.

All arrangements for a night session were completed late this afternoon. Senate leaders said they would remain in session even after midnight to get a vote. They said the bill which the Senate will put through will be about the same as the Adamson bill in the House. When the latter measure comes up in the Senate late today it may be substituted for the Senate bill. In any event, leaders said the completed bill should reach the President before tomorrow afternoon.

The Senate bill, like that of the House, sets January 1 for the proposed law to go into effect.

It sets the period of investigation from six to eight months, instead of six to nine months, and provides a per diem compensation of $25 for commission members.

The Senate bill also provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have power to fix hours of labor and prescribe just and reasonable wages for all railroad employees engaged in operation of trains in interstate.

Decision as to wages by the commission shall be made within six to twelve months, the commission under the bill having the power from time to time to change the hours and wages.

General debate on the House bill ended at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

In the Senate the interstate commerce committee reported the Senate bill favorably at 2:30 o'clock and unanimous consent to proceed was given.

As soon as Senator Newlands completed his explanation of the bill, Senator Cummins asked:

"Does the section which imposes a penalty on all who delay or obstruct operation of trains apply to an employee who refuses to move a train?"

"It is meant merely to keep the arteries of trade open and to prevent anyone willfully closing them," replied Newlands.

Reed of Missouri joined Cummings in the attack on the penalty section. He got Newlands to admit that that section and the one which gives the Interstate Commerce Commission power to fix wage rates and hours of labor were put in the bill by the committee and not in any way suggested by the President.

The Missourian declared the penalty section virtually means abrogation of right to strike and involuntary servitude for the employee, although Newlands insisted it was not so meant.

Following adjournment of the Republican Senate conference, it was announced Senator Smoot would introduce a substitute resolution to include provision for compulsory arbitration.

Some of the members who attended said there would be no attempt to filibuster against the committee bill, but that strong effort would be made to get the arbitration provision.

COMMANDANT HERE

Lieutenant J. C. King Here for a Few Days to Look Over the University.

The new commandant of the University Cadet Corps, Lieutenant Joseph C. King, reported for duty this morning in Columbia, looked over the ground, was favorably impressed and left for St. Louis this afternoon to bring Mrs. King back with him in a few days if the strike doesn't take place.

Lieutenant King has just returned from Mexico where for the last five months he was First Lieutenant of the Seventh Cavalry in General Pershing's Division. While her husband was in Mexico, Mrs. King stayed with her parents at Fort McIntosh, Laredo, Tex.

Lieutenant King's home is at Muscatine, Ia. He was a student in Ames University in 1901. During the Spanish-American War, he served as musician in Company C of the 50th Iowa Volunteer Infantry. He was graduated from West Point in 1906. He has since seen very little service in the United States. From 1907 to 1909 and from 1913 to 1915 he was in service in the Philippines. He remained in Mexico from March 16 to August 16.

The reason why the University of Missouri was without a commandant for a few months last year was explained by Lieutenant King. He received an order March 7 at Hachita, Mexico, to come to the University. Just as he was about to get on the train, he received word of the Columbus raid and was recalled to duty. He was then but twenty miles away from Columbus. If the Columbus raid had occurred one day later, the Missouri Military School would have had a commandant.

This is Lieutenant King's first visit to Columbia.

Lieutenant King would not discuss the situation in Mexico and Philippines, saying only that the Philippines are now very peaceful except for a few raids which the natives are taking care of. The soldiers from the United States have no trouble at all.
